

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 20
Issue 1 Winter

Article 17

1990

The Story of Our Lives

Michael Carey

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Carey, Michael. "The Story of Our Lives." The Iowa Review 20.1 (1990): 51-51. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.3838>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

My father is gone.
It is no longer now,
it is thousands of years
before man existed,
the horizon strangely red and burning.

THE STORY OF OUR LIVES

for Arlen and Fran Gangwish

The buzzing of flies over a carcass.

The promise of life
in the seed and the rain and the soil.

Every morning our eyes
come to rest on the horizon.

Such a large sky full of emptiness, clouds heavy with air and floating water.

These are our children growing ever closer to leaving.

Nothing so near as distance.

THE REASON FOR POETRY

There are only two chickens left now since the wild dogs got done with them.
They don't seem to care, those that remain,
cooing in the coop with a tank full of water and cracked corn they couldn't finish in a season.
I'll never get over how real the world is and yet, how easily it disappears,